

To go forward, one must sometimes look backwards

Leonardo da Vinci
Study of a mechanical wing

Leonardo did. Yet to his contemporaries, his vision of flight was fanciful.

Centuries later, we know better. But could he have imagined that, at the beginning of the third Millennium, Italy would be home to one of Europe's leading aerospace and defence groups?

FINMECCANICA operates in aeronautics, space, helicopters and defence.

The Group plays today a main role in every major international program and project under way in these core business areas, contributing with its unique know-how to the design, development and production process.
